Ford Outlines Battle Against 6% Tax On Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans in Congress will try to head off President Johnson's proposed tax increase, their House leader says.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan also said the GOP seeks Social Security benefit improvements without raising the payroll levy.

Ford called for development of an antismile program to match the Soviet Union's, for continuing air strikes against military targets in North Vietnam and improving the program for pacifying the South Vietnamese countryside.

Ford's views, amounting to a preview of the Republican "State of the Union" program to be made public Thursday, were given in question and answer form in the Republican Congressional Committee publication "Newsletter."

"Republicans will try to reduce nonmilitary spending to the point where the 6 per cent surtax proposed by the President will be unnecessary," Ford said.

Describing Johnson's proposal for a tax increase as a tragic mistake, Ford said "the President has yet to present solid evidence that it is necessary and I believe the burden of proof rests on the President."

"Most top economists I have talked with are deeply concerned that a tax increase might aggravate some of the recessionary tendencies that are already apparent in the economy," he said.

Johnson has proposed an average 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits without as yet discussing methods of financing it.

Ford said: Republicans will support an increase. But the 20 per cent over-all average increase would mean a sharp increase in Social Security taxes — taxes which already rose automatically the first of this month 4 per cent.

"I favor the Republican approach which would provide an immediate increase in benefits of 8 per cent, and, in the future, automatic increases whenever the consumer price index rises 3 per cent or more. This approach requires no increase in Social Security taxes."

Senate Leader Lauds Scholle

LANSING (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Emil Lockwood had praise Friday for state AFL-CIO President August Scholle, who doesn't often get praise from Republicans.

Lockwood urged Gov. George Romney to reappoint Scholle to the Michigan Conservation Commission. His term expired Dec. 31.

Republicans frequently refer to Scholle as a string-puller in the state Democratic party. Lockwood, in a letter to Romney, noted the governor and the labor leader have exchanged sharp words in the past.

"But I am sure that if you review the position Mr. Scholle took on conservation legislation during his term on the Conservation Commission, you will see that it agrees with your views and mine," Lockwood wrote.

'Iron Triangle' Drive Costs Reds 450 Men

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Sharp fighting flared up and down South Vietnam today and the big American drive in the "Iron Triangle" pushed Communist losses beyond 450 men.

There were no major engagements reported but the U.S. and Vietnamese commands listed many small clashes and these other developments:

—Two U.S. planes went down in combat, one over North Vietnam and the other in the south.

—A Norwegian motor ship and a U.S. Navy minesweeper boat collided in a river 30 miles southeast of Saigon and the Navy boat sank with the loss of three of her seven-man crew.

—U.S. B52 heavy bombers struck at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops less than a mile south of the demilitarized zone.

—Bad weather continued to hamper U.S. air raids over the Communist north but pilots attacked coastal targets and reported putting 54 junks and barges out of action.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said two battalions of Viet Cong — a force estimated at 400 men — overran a military post 325 miles northeast of Saigon and the defending platoon of 30 Popular Force militiamen pulled out.

The spokesman said the militiamen dispersed and he had no report on casualties. At last report, the post was still in Communist hands.

Elsewhere, however, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 38 Red troops in four small clashes ranging from 54 miles southwest of Saigon to 276 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. Marines operating in the northern provinces of South Vietnam reported killing 74 of the enemy in a series of light skirmishes and with artillery barrages. The artillery bombardments accounted for 27 of the total, U.S. headquarters said.

In Operation Cedar Falls, the week-old drive to clear out the jungles of the Iron Triangle 20 to 30 miles north of Saigon, U.S. forces counted 286 Viet Cong dead so far, 64 captured and an additional 105 who surrendered.

Air Force tactical bombers pounded the triangle with 79 one-plane sorties during the day to raise the number of strikes to 669 for the week.

The operation, biggest of the war, has seen no major fighting so far. Enemy casualties resulted from repeated small contacts on the ground, air strikes and artillery shelling.

Over North Vietnam Friday, U.S. pilots flew 73 strike missions, about half the number they fly when the weather is good. During the forays, a U.S. spokesman reported, a Navy A4 Skyhawk was shot down by Communist ground fire and the pilot is missing. It brought to 457 the total of U.S. planes lost over the north.

Township Officials Favor Income Levy

LANSING (AP) — The 200 delegates at the convention of the Michigan Townships Association have indicated almost unanimously they would favor a state income tax if property taxes were reduced substantially.

Joseph Parisi Jr., the association's executive director, said

Friday he asked for a show of hands and was "shocked to see almost all the hands go up" in support of an income tax.

"When I asked for a negative vote, not more than 10 hands were raised," he said.

Parisi said he took the vote after a legislator asked him how township officials viewed a statewide income tax.

In a formal resolution, the delegates urged legislation to prohibit cities from taxing the incomes of nonresidents who work in the city.

They also called for broader taxing and ordinance-making powers for townships.

The convention urged repeal of last year's county reappointment act, which would provide for election of supervisors from equal-population districts.

The act has gone to the Michigan Supreme Court for an advisory opinion on its constitutionality.

The township officials urged that the law be repealed and replaced with a plan which would include a representative of each township on the county board.

Advocates of the one-man, one-vote apportionment for county boards have rejected this approach, arguing that including a representative from each township and still maintaining equal-population districts would make county boards too large and unwieldy.

Fire Claims 9 In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A fire that engulfed a three-story row house in a ball of flame killed nine members of one family today police said. Three others were injured or were unaccounted for, according to police.

The fire was a few blocks from Girard College in the North Philadelphia section of the city.

Neighbors, who stood in a light rain as firemen sorted through the blackened wreckage, said the fire broke out about 6 a.m. Within seconds, said the neighbors, the house was a mass of flame. Some said they tried to rush for the front door but the intense heat drove them back.

One boy jumped from a second floor and was taken to a hospital.

Neighbors said they heard a shout, "The Drums' house is on fire."

Rushing outside, they saw flames consuming the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Drumm at 2533 Parish St.

Blue Cross Rate Raise Approved

LANSING (AP) — A two per cent average increase in Blue Cross base rates was approved Friday by State Insurance Commissioner David J. Dykhouse.

The increase will be levied on Blue Cross customers as their policies come up for renewal after April 1.

Base rates for Blue Shield will remain the same, Dykhouse said.

Dykhouse said rising hospital costs were the main reason for the increase. Operating expenses of Michigan hospitals rose 12.4 per cent from 1965 to 1966, he said.

A further increase of 11.9 per cent is expected this year, he said. Blue Cross, known as Michigan Hospital Service, applied for the increase last November.

LBJ To Ask 3-Step Educational Program

3-Year Olds To Be Included In 'Head Start'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will center his legislative efforts in education this year on a three-step attempt to prepare children from poor families for the competitive world of the classroom.

Administration sources said today the President will ask Congress to:

1. Start a network of neighborhood child development centers providing health, recreational and educational services for infants and very young children.

2. Open the doors of the Head Start preschool program to three-year-olds.

3. Earmark $135 million to reduce class size, increase the number of teachers and aides and supply the best possible curricula and materials in the first three grades of elementary schools in poverty areas.

Only New Programs

A White House aide said these probably would be the administration's only new educational proposals this year, although existing school aid programs are expected to be refined and perhaps extended.

In his State of the Union message Tuesday night, Johnson told Congress "we should try new methods of child development and care from the earliest years before it's too late to correct them."

Thus the President touched on a theory advanced by many educators that a child's early years — and especially his family background — heavily affect his later classroom accomplishments.

A recent Office of Education study shows that children from poverty-level, minority group families start school significantly behind other youngsters and that this gap increases through the grades.

Head Start Change

Project Head Start, launched two years ago, is designed to overcome this. Until now, most of its enrollees have been four- and five-year-olds, although five per cent are three years old. Johnson wants Congress to allow more three-year-olds to participate in the preschool program.

Head Start officials see no difficulty in rearing for the younger group. They say classes would emphasize developing the natural inquisitiveness of these "young scientists" by introducing them to new textures, colors, sights, sounds and words.

Children in Head Start classes also receive medical and dental examinations, get one hot meal a day, are read stories and shown pictures, dance and play, visit zoos, fire stations and puppet shows and hear professional people talk about their jobs.

Year-round Head Start programs are expected to enroll 170,000 children this year while summer sessions will be attended by another 400,000.

Peking Admits Army Anti-Mao Build-Up

TOKYO (AP) — A Red Chinese military unit has stormed a hideout of military officers opposed to Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung and arrested "scores" of the officers, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

It appeared to be the first report of violence within China's 2.5-million-man People's Liberation Army over Mao's purge of his opponents. Peking radio reported earlier that an "acute and complicated" struggle involving a small but influential group of anti-Maoists had built up within the army.

Other Japanese reports said President Liu Shao-chi, the top anti-Mao leader, recently demanded before the Communist Central Committee a retraction of his "self-criticism" widely publicized last December.

Officers Arrested

The reports said the demand could indicate that Liu was confident of maintaining his power and that he had launched a counterattack against Mao and Defense Minister Lin Biao.

The Peking correspondent of Mainichi Shimbun said the officers were arrested last Tuesday in Lanchow, a city of more than 150,000 persons 700 miles west of Peking on the Yellow River.

The correspondent quoted a wall poster put up in Peking and signed by "the 750th Lantzu Regiment." The regiment is stationed in Lanchow.

Six Marshals Loyal

The poster reportedly said the captured officers were "black military elements" loyal to Gen. Liu Chih-chien, ousted by Mao's supporters as director of the Military Revolution Committee and No. 2 man in charge of ideological matters in the army.

The officers' documents were reported confiscated.

Child Services Lack Personnel

Delta County offers a wide range of services to children but the program is threatened by a serious lack of professional personnel, the Escanaba League of Women Voters was told Tuesday evening by Michael Miketina, field representative of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

In Delta County one case-worker handles a case load which includes supervision of 23 licensed foster homes; two day-care centers; 15 children attached to Michigan Children's Institute, an arm of the Michigan Department of Social Services; two county wards; four Aid to Dependent Children in Foster Care; 10 boys at Boys' Training School; and two girls at Girls' Training School plus case work for another county.

When the family cannot provide adequate care for the child or fails to do so and it comes to the attention of the court, the Probate Court can refer the child to an agency of its own, a private agency, or the Michigan Department of Social Services, Miketina said. When the child is referred to Children's Services, they must notify the court within 24 hours that the department has accepted the child for admission to Boys' Training School or Girls' Training School, or service the child in his own home, or a foster or boarding home.

Some of the other child welfare services offered by the department include the inspection and licensing of boarding and foster homes, day-care centers, nursery schools, and adoption agencies; protection of children in their own homes; service to unmarried mothers; and adoption proceedings.

Miketina pointed out that at present there is no detention facility in the U. P. Children between 15 and 17 who require secure custody for their own protection are housed in the county jail for 10 days. It is expected that eventually there will be a detention facility in the U. P.

The final meeting in this series of three meetings on public welfare services available for children will be held on January 23 and 25. The League will then attempt to arrive at a consensus of opinion.

Fire Loss Down This Past Year

Escanaba had a very good year indeed in the prevention of fire and in the reduction of fire losses in the community in 1966, it is reported by Fire Chief Palmer Derouin.

"The total fire loss in Escanaba last year was $24,105 compared to $190,816 in 1965," he reported.

The reduction was primarily in the decline in the losses caused by dwelling fires and in autos and other losses, the report shows.

For example, the building loss in Escanaba in 1965 was $120,749 compared to only $23,261 last year. "Just more fires, mostly in homes in 1965," said Chief Derouin.

One of the major losses in 1965 was the extensive damage to a diesel locomotive in the Chicago & North Western Railway yards. There was no such loss last year and the category of "automobile and other losses" declined from $70,067 to $344.

One of the major news events in the Fire Department last year was the retirement of veteran Chief Nels Bergeson and the promotion of Derouin, who was captain, to the chief position.

Chief Derouin today announced that Duwane Hanson, former lieutenant, has been promoted to captain, and Edsel Bedard has been advanced from fireman-driver to lieutenant within the department. The promotions fill vacancies.

There were more fire calls received by the department last year but there were no fire fatalities. The total alarms went up from 285 to 340 but there were no deaths, compared to one fatal in 1965.

Grass and brush fires increased from 75 to 151, out of city calls went from 27 to 28, and automobile fires dropped from 29 to 19.

In fire prevention work the firemen made 486 routine inspections, 198 special inspections, and one follow-up for a total of 685 inspections in the program to reduce or eliminate the causes of fires.

Under the Mack Bridge Bill, the provisions would provide for full payment of the outstanding bonds through an appropriation from the State's general fund. "To be responsible in this legislation," Mack stated, "the bill would call for repayment to the general fund from the revenue obtained through the reduced toll."

"This," Mack said, "is the only feasible plan which would provide immediate benefits to the residents of the North country and the economy of Michigan while at the same time meeting the debt obligations of the Bridge. In my judgment, 'half a loaf is better than none.'"

"The facts will point out that over the past years all we have received relative to reducing the Bridge tolls have been promises. My bill is sound in every respect and should receive bi-partisan support. The time has come to fish or cut bait as far as the Mackinac Bridge issue is concerned."

Under the Mack Bridge Bill, the provisions would provide for full payment of the outstanding bonds through an appropriation from the State's general fund. "To be responsible in this legislation," Mack stated, "the bill would call for repayment to the general fund from the revenue obtained through the reduced toll."

"This," Mack said, "is the only feasible plan which would provide immediate benefits to the residents of the North country and the economy of Michigan while at the same time meeting the debt obligations of the Bridge. In my judgment, 'half a loaf is better than none.'"

"The facts will point out that over the past years all we have received relative to reducing the Bridge tolls have been promises. My bill is sound in every respect and should receive bi-partisan support. The time has come to fish or cut bait as far as the Mackinac Bridge issue is concerned."

Sen. Schweigert Begins 4th Term

Means of financing the ever-rising cost of governmental services will be one of the primary tasks of the new session of the legislature, which opened Wednesday, Sen. Thomas F. Schweigert, Republican of Petoskey, said this week.

Sen. Schweigert, starting his fourth term in the Senate—this one for four years—was sworn in at a colorful inaugural ceremony on opening day Wednesday.

He also was elected President Pro Tempore of the Senate. In that position, he will preside over the Senate and take over the duties of Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken of Traverse City, when the Lieutenant Governor is not present during sessions.

In addition to his senatorial and the president pro tem duties, Sen. Schweigert will be Chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee and a member of the important Legislative Council.

What They Want
"The big problem facing the 74th session of the legislature will be the one of how to finance the state services which Michigan residents wish to be provided them," said Sen. Schweigert.

"Even without providing new services, the rising cost of providing existing services, unfortunately, will mean more taxes if the state is to avoid going into debt.

"The price of government is taxes. Michigan residents can have anything they want in the way of services that they are willing to pay for.

"During the new session, it will be up to the people back home to let their legislators know what they want in services and what they are willing to pay for.

"Then it will be up to the legislature to find ways of financing those services."

Sen. Schweigert said tax increases under consideration include those involving cigarettes and gasoline.

Safety Measures
"Perhaps even an income tax will have to be levied if the demand for new state services is extensive but I would hazard a guess that passage of such a new tax would come only after a serious soul-searching on the part of all senators," said Sen. Schweigert.

"After all, no legislator wants to add more taxes on anyone and does so only when required to finance the cost of government asked by voters."

In addition to providing new taxes, Sen. Schweigert said he expects the current session of the legislature to make major efforts to attack the serious problem of highway safety.

"This may mean passage of laws requiring compulsory motor vehicle inspection and the so-called 'implied consent,' which provides that before drivers can obtain licenses they must agree to take sobriety tests if arrested on suspicion of drunk driving," said the Petoskey Republican.

Schweigert said he expects the State Affairs Committee to consider a reorganization of the National Guard structure to more clearly define the lines of authority between the Governor and the National Guard establishment.

Schweigert presided at a Senate Inaugural Luncheon at Lansing's Civic Center Wednesday noon and he and his wife, Peggy, were official hosts at a dinner-dance Tuesday evening.

Wednesday afternoon, Sen. and Mrs. Schweigert held an open house for many friends and relatives from his district in his office on the second floor of the Senate.

Safe Sledding Tips Offered

Snowmobile travelers who plan trips into Michigan's forests are cautioned by the Conservation Department to play it safe. Here are a few suggestions:

Don't travel alone. An emergency stop in cold weather and deep snow could mean tragedy, if you are all by yourself. Carry snowshoes as an emergency means of travel in backwoods country.

Snowmobiles in pairs or, better yet, in groups are much safer than singles. A companion can detect the tell-tale white spots of frost bite and, in case of a breakdown, he may mean the difference between serious trouble and a safe return.

Be extra careful in swamps. Danger lurks in every snow-covered spring hole. A breakthrough in one of these could have tragic results. Crossing a stream or river is especially hazardous. River ice is generally much thinner than lake ice.

In severe weather, stop your machine frequently, get off, and exercise vigorously.

If you take your snowmobile into the forest on a trailer, when you park your car on the wooded road, be sure you leave room for others to drive by.

If your outing is in a park instead of a forest, be sure to stay on designated trails. Be considerate of others; don't get in the way of those on sleds or toboggans.

At all times, put the safety of yourself and others first.

Accident Case Set For Trial In Court Monday

Jury trial of a civil suit arising from an automobile accident in Ensign Township in 1964 is expected to begin at 9:30 a. m. Monday before Judge Bernard H. Davidson of Negaunee in Circuit Court for Delta County.

Jurors for the term have been ordered to report to the courtroom in the Delta County building at 9:30.

Suit against Michigan Transportation Co. and David Duane DeVoy was brought by Gladys Sundquist of Rapid River for her daughter, Karen, 17, who was injured when the car in which she was riding was involved in an accident about 2:15 p. m. Dec. 29, 1964, on U. S. 2 in Ensign Township.

The action asks $50,000 damages for Karen and an additional $15,000 for her father, Raymond, for payment of medical bills.

Action in court Monday will depend whether or not the parties involved reach a settlement prior to trial.

Citizens Group Is Organized

Escanaba's Citizens Advisory Committee appointed by the City Council is moving toward organization status, including the election of officers and the adoption of by-laws.

Thirty-one members, meeting at the State Office Building Thursday night, discussed their advisory role in community service and agreed with Robert Mosenfelder, temporary chairman, to initially limit activities to three study areas:

1—Housing; 2—Codes Revision; and 3—Downtown Development.

The group agreed that a chairman, vice chairman and secretary will be elected. A nominating committee, composed of Dr. William Hemes, Mrs. Jeanne Bonefield and Dale Heidenreich was appointed.

A by-laws study committee is composed of Atty. Arthur Neuman, Mrs. Ruth Neumeier and Walter T. Nelson. The committees are to report at the next meeting, to be held on Feb. 9.

Dave Kennedy, representing the city's planning consultants, Harland, Bartholomew & Associates, was introduced to the Committee.

Mosenfelder, temporary chairman, said the Advisory Committee has been appointed to represent a cross section of the community's areas and interests; and that it is organized with the best interests of the community in mind.

The committee is not a final decision agency but merely recommends to the City Council on the basis of Committee studies, he pointed out.

The Committee is a requirement for the city to obtain funds on a number of projects—but it is not a rubber stamp or public relations group for the City Council, Mosenfelder said.

"Its function is to report objectively the public opinion and the results of its findings," Mosenfelder told the group.

Schedule U.P. Salmon Planting

When Michigan makes its first introduction of chinook (king) salmon in the state's waters next spring, some of these fish will be planted in the Big Huron River in Baraga County.

The Michigan Conservation Department previously announced that it had obtained 1,000,000 chinook salmon eggs free of charge from the State of Washington for eventual planting in a Lower Peninsula stream yet to be picked.

The department did not announce that any of these salmon would be planted in the Upper Peninsula. But this news paper has learned that plans call for planting some of the young chinooks in the Big Huron River to give a comparison in growth and survival rates with the chinooks planted in a tributary of Lake Michigan in the Lower Peninsula.

The Big Huron also was selected for plantings of coho (silver) salmon last spring, when Michigan introduced this species to state waters. Coho released in the Big Huron are known to have survived, but the growth rate has not been as impressive as that of coho that were planted about the same time in two streams in the northern Lower Peninsula.

If all goes well with the first stocking of chinook salmon in Michigan this year, plans are to release more of these fish, which reach 60 pounds or more on the West Coast, in other waters tributary to the Great Lakes.

Chinooks are expected to gobble up troublesome, low value alewives by the tons—all the better for them to grow on and, hopefully, to turn a nagging fish management problem into a fisherman's bonanza.

From Washington's supply of free eggs, the department hopes to rear upwards of 750,000 young chinooks which will be planted at three to four inches next spring. If they grow at the tremendous rate of the coho in Lake Michigan, a few two-year-old chinooks are expected to return to the planted stream in the fall of 1968. A few large adults should appear in 1969, with the main chinook run expected to occur in the fourth year of their life cycle—1970.

To keep the chinook introduction rolling, the department is banking on getting additional eggs from the Pacific Northwest for at least three more years.

If this new fishery develops, anglers will get top play from chinooks by trolling with artificial lures and natural baits like alewives and smelt.

The chinook is an excellent table fish also. Its dark, rich red meat commands top price for salmon steaks.

Order Mental Test Of Nuss

ANN ARBOR (AP) — A mental examination was ordered Friday to determine whether Ralph C. Nuss, who has admitted two slayings, is a criminal sexual psychopath.

Circuit Court Judge Will F. Ager ordered the examination at the request of Nuss' attorneys.

Ager said he would appoint three psychiatrists who would report back to him by next Friday.

Nuss, 30, is charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Tom Brown 19, of Windsor, Ont., Nov. 10.

He also has admitted the slaying of Arland Withrow, 17, a Ypsilanti youth who was strangled, police said.

Nuss formerly was supervisor of outside work for prisoners at the Federal Correctional Institution at Milan.

Trial Is Ordered

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—Marcel LeFrancois, 32, of Stony Point, Ont., has been ordered to stand trial on a dangerous driving charge stemming from his truck's collision with a school bus that killed eight youngsters.

Our Competition

The biggest competitor of the Upper Peninsula for recreation business is the Province of Ontario, Canada. It lies about us to the north and east in a great enclosure, bounding Lakes Superior and Huron and inviting the Midwest to come and play in its great expanse of forest and lakeland.

Nature has been very kind to Ontario and so has history. It has not been settled up like the United States, so that it presents a pristine attraction hard to find in the States. Increasingly Americans turn to it for recreation, finding unspoiled nature in great swatches, good fishing, Cree Indians, the attractions of things "foreign" and a very friendly people.

The Upper Peninsula, as it seeks more tourists and recreation business, cannot do much about creating a natural beauty to match Canada's because that is God-given, but fortunately it doesn't need too, because it, too, is naturally beautiful in a way that matches Ontario.

It should, however, organize for the development of recreational business and in this it has been no match for Ontario. Michigan could take some lessons from our neighboring Province. We were in the tourist business before Ontario, but we have not kept pace with her. Our basic state structuring for tourism development is poor and now the establishment has been tucked into a corner of the Conservation Department, which could compound its problems of proper recognition, support and growth.

Ontario and the Upper Peninsula have many similarities. Both are heavily forested. The Province has organized its resources to make full economic use of its forest abundance.

Multiple use is a basic concept of Ontario forest land use, making the forest produce not only wood for industry, but also recreation, fish and wildlife habitat and watersheds. Since 1958 land use planning has been in active control of crown lands and crown-controlled resources.

The government can limit the cutting of timber on government lands for forest management, watershed protection, fire protection or preservation of the beauty of the landscape. In the U.P. private ownership complicates this control and roadside attraction is not the concern of the logger who creates an unsightly slash to dismay the visitor's eye.

Hunting, fishing and trapping for furs offer the main support of the Indian population of the Hudson Bay Lowlands, a situation which has not survived in the United States into this century. These Indians share their hunting with recreation seekers to some degree and it provides a much larger income than the value of the game and fish as food for the Indians.

About 10 per cent of Ontario's wood production is from farm woodlots in its southern area. The Province is making the transition from dependence upon wildlands for its wood supply to managed woodlands which give high priority to multiple usage—serving all the needs of the public—in what seems from this distance to be a well coordinated program.

Michigan has been a pioneer in many of these fields of development. Its biggest problem now is one of coordination. It has so many state departments and agencies concerned with the control and development of our natural resources that it is difficult to coordinate their efforts so that they do not overlap, compete or neglect.

This has been troublesome enough at the state level and now it is more difficult because of the increasing inclination of federal agencies to use their muscle in situations where they don't like what the state is doing.

The current accent on pollution control is an example of our lack of resource management. It is a symptom rather than a disease.

Smits Mourns Loss Of Fears

Wild Animal Threat Gone

BY LEE SMITS
On a wintry night with a howling wind, it seems kind of too bad, if you are snug indoors, to think that there are no dangerous wild beasts prowling the Michigan woods. There used to be, in the imagination of a lot of people. My grandma, who spent her childhood in the wilds of Branch County, heard panthers scream. Maybe no present-day mammalogist ever heard a panther scream, but grandma did.

As a kid I heard unwashed shakers tell of the lynx, or "link," that would lie in wait on a limb above the trail to pounce on a passerby. Any barber, bartender or hotel clerk in the Upper Peninsula could give you a detailed account of wolves devouring a man up the line a ways the winter before, although painstaking research has never authenticated a report of wolves attacking a person.

Bears, yes. Michigan has two positive instances of fatal bear attacks over a period of 80 years; an Indian berry-picker in Cheboygan county, killed by a bear he had wounded with a muzzle-loader, and a two-year-old girl, killed and carried off by a medium-sized bear above the Soo.

FUR-TRADE narratives indicate that Michigan Indians feared the panther because they had reason to believe it preyed on children. The panther was one animal they hunted down relentlessly at any season.

The black bear is never to be trusted. Michigan bears that have acquired the garbage-dump habit show a disdain for man that is disturbing. Driving

The second annual meeting of the Escanaba municipal employees Federal Credit Union was held in conjunction with a banquet-meeting sponsored by the city council for all city employees. All joint credit union members were also invited to attend.

Dr. Beryl D. Orris, brilliant American psychiatrist and world traveler, spoke at the William Oliver Auditorium. His topic was "An American Refugee Comes Home," and he also answered questions regarding Hitler's mental quirks and war conditions in Europe.

A contest seemed to be running in the city to see who could find the oldest coin. Mr. H. D. Brackett, sales manager for Ford automobiles in the county put all the other ancient coin holders out of business when he produced an Egyptian coin bearing the date 1914.

Today was observed as a meatless day in every restaurant and hotel in the city. The purpose of this was to save on meat and money, which was turned over to the Red Cross for help in war efforts.

TRAVELED FROM AFAR
Anthropologists believe that the original inhabitants of Madagascar came from Melanesia and Indonesia, 4,000 miles away, although the island lies only 250 miles off Africa's coast.

on a back road north of Seney, chipmunk up by the tail, the weasel made a leap and clamped down on its prey, permitting itself to be swung back and forth, dangle from the chipmunk. My friend decided to catch the weasel. He removed a hip boot, shoved the chipmunk into the boot and as the weasel dashed after its prize, George tried to confine it in the boot.

By this time the weasel had lost its temper. It shot out of the boot and made a direct attack on my partner. He batted the weasel off with his gloved hands. Then we agreed that the weasel deserved the chipmunk, with no further foolishness. As it loped away with a burden about as hefty as itself, George said:

"If one of those cusses weighed fifty pounds, a man wouldn't be safe in the woods."

Yet another member of the weasel tribe, the wolverine, does weigh close to 50 pounds and is credited with killing big game on occasion, although there are no tales of wolverine tackling humans.

(Nor of wolverine ever being native to Michigan. Heavy shipments of wolverine pelts from Michigan to eastern cities probably accounts for the nickname, "Wolverine State," although the wolverines were brought in to Michigan trading posts from as far away as the Rocky Mountains.)

Guideline In Vietnam

By RAY CROMLEY
TOKYO — (NEA) — It is important at this time to evaluate the successes and failures of the American occupation of Japan after World War II.

A study of that occupation will have some bearing on what course the United States should follow in South Vietnam.

South Vietnam is independent. The United States doesn't occupy the country. But U. S. objectives are the same as in Japan—to create a viable self-governing nation able to maintain itself against subversive pressures.

This reporter lived in Japan before World War II. He was there during the occupation. He came back after 30 years. The conclusions that follow are the result of 87 interviews with Japanese businessmen, professors, students, newspaper editors, doctors, politicians, former officers.

It seems clear that the occupation can claim five major achievements:

en.
en.
en.

It created a politically conscious class of small, independent farmers.

It changed Japanese society so that there is a greater recognition of the worth of the individual.

It destroyed the dominant position of the military in Japanese government and society.

It produced a reformation of industrial management which has enabled more men with ability to rise even though they have no family "connections."

The occupation did poorly in two major fields:
1—It set up a complex of organizations and governing systems which largely ignored Japanese traditions. While it was wise to eliminate some old customs, the heavy disregard of Japanese tradition set up forces

Finding The Way Finicky Eaters Are Not Born That Way

By RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.
Newspaper Editor-At-Large

Should churches be taxed? This perennial problem is being debated as well as by local congregations. Recently, I made its way to the Supreme Court, with that judicial body refusing to review the matter. Congregations here and there have been discussing the giving of voluntary contributions to local governments toward the cost of fire and police protection.

There is a deep sensitivity in contemporary religious life concerning the relation of the church to its environment. The separation of church and state was never meant to be a gulf which kept the church from the world in which it lives. It was a principle enunciated to enable the church to live as a free agent.

It may not be a popular thing to speak prophetically but the church is not in the world to court popularity. It is in the world to proclaim its faith and to communicate that which it believes to be essential to the well-being of mankind. It is this dimension that it is meant to demonstrate as well as to proclaim.

One facet of this discussion is the taxation issue. The suggestion that the congregation make a contribution to the local government seems reasonable enough. In one congregation, after a thorough discussion of the matter, a playground was established in a neighborhood devoid of recreational facilities. This was done anonymously, the church believing that it could move in quickly and unostentatiously to do what it ought to do as its contribution.

Other churches have contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to programs of educational and social significance. They are doing what one theologian proclaimed: "The church should be the first to feel, the first to think and the first to act." Too often the church has reacted instead of acting. Too often good people have felt but have not thought the matter through. Too often persons of faith have thought but have not acted. Nonetheless, in every section of the United States and Canada there are those who have attempted to keep their goal as their sacred obligation.

For centuries sensitive men of religious faith have established institutions, cared for needs, healed hurts and have done the work which others were neglecting. Ultimately, the government takes over. Then the church can get out of that area and work in another.

In any event, "The test of a church is not what happens inside the church building, but what happens in the parish, what new quality of life is seen because of our existence."

If the church can demonstrate this fact quietly and positively it is making its contribution to police and fire protection. If it can't, then it had better re-examine its life.

Dear Ann Landers: I like the way you put down the cheap-skates, meddlers, pests, nags and blabbermouths. One group you haven't hit for a long time is the meanest of all and I wish you'd go after them again. I refer to selfish children who don't want their widowed father to remarry, for financial reasons.

It never fails. If Dad has no money the children try like crazy to push him off on some nice woman who will take care of him in his old age. If Dad has a little cash or owns some property they tell him to be careful because every woman in town is after his money.

I am 58 and have been going with a wonderful widower who is 63. I shouldn't say I am going with him because we never go anywhere. He comes to my place almost every night for home-cooked meals and we watch TV together. He says he can't take me out in public because his children wouldn't like it.

I am very fond of this man and he is very fond of me. We could have a good life together but he has never remarried because his children are against it. I don't go with anyone else because he has asked me not to and I'd hate to make him angry.

Don't you feel this man is stupid to allow his children to run his life? Please say so. — MRS. ALONE TOGETHER

Dear Mrs.: He's not stupid. You are. The man has told you that marriage is out, yet you cook for him almost every night, allow him to burn out your TV tube, and you don't go with anyone else because he might get angry. I'd say he is pretty darned smart.

Confidential to At The Top But Lonely: People can get through grief and sorrow alone if they must, but joy must be shared. I have never known a loner who was happy. This, my friend is your problem.

South Solves West's Problems

South wished he had lied. It seemed that East would surely hold the king of hearts and that the slam would go down.

East did hold the guarded king of hearts and if West had opened the ace of spades, South would have been unable to make his contract, but the club lead gave South an extra chance and he took advantage of it.

At trick two South led the jack of hearts but he went up with dummy's ace. Then he proceeded to run off dummy's diamonds and poor East had to follow suit while South jetted off all his money.

West had lots of problems with today's hand. To start with he didn't know if he should pass or bid one, three, four or five clubs. We can't find fault with his selection of a three-club call although we would prefer to start with one club only to allow for the possibility of getting together with partner in spades.

West's next problem came after North and South arrived at six hearts. He thought about sacrificing at seven clubs but finally came to the right decision and passed. Then he had to make his opening lead.

This did not seem like much of a problem to him. He placed the king of clubs on the table.

South had been having his own problems with the bidding. He had made a fine decision when he went to three hearts after his partner's three diamond overcall but he had almost lied about aces and was tempted to bid five clubs in response to his partner's Blackwood four no-trump.

Security Benefits Could Top Earnings

By JOHN CUNNEIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Social Security minimum benefit is raised to $70 a month, as President Johnson proposed, many recipients in that category will receive bigger checks than they had earned while working.

This presumes a continuation of present Social Security scales, which apply the minimum payment to those whose average yearly earnings after 1950 were less than $900.

At the present minimum of $44, these people receive $328 a year. Under the Johnson proposal they would be entitled to $840.

Much Changed

Small and inadequate as these benefits might be, they illustrate the gradual but tremendous change that has taken place in the concept of Social Security during the past three decades.

As originally stated, Social Security benefits tied to the amount paid into the fund while the individual was working. This idea has been dropped. Benefits now are based on average earnings.

Since it was established three decades ago, Social Security has been interpreted differently almost year by year as knowledge grew, personal needs and social demands changed, and political pressure became more or less insistent.

Originally, workers who retired at 65 were eligible. Dependents and survivors were then added to the list of recipients. Limits on retirement earnings were liberalized later. The disabled began receiving benefits in the 1960s, and coverage was extended to farmers and other self-employed.

Now we have medicare, and some members of both major political parties want to see benefits tied to the rising cost of living.

To pay for these benefits, most of which fall below minimums for a decent life and must be supplemented from savings, other income or private pensions, the tax on payrolls has been steadily increased.

Originally, each employee and employer paid $30 a year into the fund. In 1966 this had risen to $277.50. On Jan. 1, the tax rose to 4.4 per cent of the first $9,600 earned, or a total of $290.40 from each employee and employer.

Second Biggest Tax
Johnson did not disclose details of his proposed increase in benefits. To make such an increase, however, would require still another boost in the payroll tax.

These increases have made the Social Security tax second in size only to the income tax. As of now — before any income tax increase — it represents 17 per cent of all federal tax collections.

This brings us to the point where one of the hottest arguments of all is raging. The dispute is over whether general revenue funds should be added to the pool.

Perhaps unfortunately, most arguments over Social Security have been imbedded by politics or political philosophies.

Both parties are fully aware of the merits of Social Security. Some see dangers. Some fear even that it is undermining some basic values of personal thrift and responsibility. No politician can ignore it, however.

23 Millions More
Twenty-three million persons now receive benefits. There are 19 million citizens over 65 and millions more close to that age. Many millions more are directly, often financially, concerned with elderly relatives. And most of these people vote.

President Johnson's present proposals will be like turning up the flame beneath the pressure cooker, in which most Social Security dialogues are conducted. Already the congressional debate is reheating. It had never fully cooled.

Last fall, shortly before the 1966 elections, Johnson made known his desire to raise benefits this year. Feeling votes were at stake, the Republicans came back with a plan for immediate action, but no legislation resulted.

Bark River

Fire Report

Twenty-nine fires in Bark River Township caused an estimated damage of $30,350 during the past year according to Fire Chief Herman Palmgren of the Bark River Volunteer Fire Department.

Chief Palmgren reported building losses as $13,850 and losses on contents of buildings was estimated as $16,500.

The fire department responded to twenty-nine calls in the township. Fire causes included one careless use of matches, seventeen careless burning of rubbish, two from bonfires igniting buildings, one from fuel oil burners, one auto collision with power pole, one misuse of electrical appliances, four defective chimneys, one overheated heating device and one juvenile causing fire.

A barn on the Stanley Kwarciany farm on County Road 535 about five miles south of Bark River burned on Oct. 5, and destroyed 3500 bales of hay, a tractor, wagon, hay baler, potato digger, milking machine and other tools, was listed as the worst fire of the year in this area, and raised the total fire loss for the year.

The department had five resuscitations, traveled 342 miles, had 425 man hours fighting fires and used 18,400 gallons of water.

Quigley, who was attending a conference with representatives of six Great Lake states to set water purity standards, said Lake Erie can be reclaimed only with enormous expenditures.

Quigley said he does not blame industry entirely for water pollution because private boat owners and municipalities are among the worst offenders.

Builder License Law Challenged

LANSING (AP) — The attorney general's office is to decide next week whether to appeal a court injunction against part of the new licensing and bonding law for residential and home improvement contractors.

Circuit Court Judge Marvin Salmon of Ingham County issued a temporary order preventing enforcement of a section which would prohibit unlicensed contractors from suing to collect their bills.

A group of contractors, represented by Lee Boothby, a Niles attorney, contend the entire act is unconstitutional. No date has been set for a court hearing on this issue.

The law, adopted last year, requires all contractors who build residences or do maintenance and alteration work on houses to obtain state licenses and post bond of $2,000 or $5,000, depending on their volume of business.

Lenton Sculthorpe, state director of licensing and regulation, said about 13,000 applications for licenses have been received and more than 6,000 licenses have been issued.

In about 6,000 cases, Sculthorpe added, the contractors' applications did not include all the required information.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Joseph Bilitzke said the law replaces a 1953 law which applied only to the state's eight most populous counties.

The new law, he said, makes the licensing provisions statewide, provides for licensing of salesmen for the contractors, provides control over prefabricated houses and revised the bonding requirements somewhat.

Skirts To Remain Short Say American Designers

NEW YORK (AP) — Skirts from chin to thigh-high hem will continue to diminish. Pants will be acceptable to everyone, even maitre d's. Paper will revolutionize utility fashions, but not necessarily couture fashions.

Nearly every designer will have a hand in improving the chic or archaically dressed men.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy will remain on her fashion pedestal. All this was made clear at a luncheon meeting of America's most influential apparel makers Friday.

The discussion among some 200 style reporters was the closing session of a weeklong preview of spring fashions called the American Designer Series.

Although Gaston Berthelot, French couturier for New York's house of Christian Dior, expressed hope that the opening of European collections next week might promise some hemline surprises, Americans, and particularly Oleg Cassini, offered the consolation that the eye would eventually get used to the escalating skirt.

"As skirts get shorter we will concentrate on the leg as a whole," said Oscar De La Renta, who does so with glittering knee pants, tights and silver stockings in his current collection.

He complimented Rudi Gernreich, creator of the topless bathing suit, for paving the way with bright leotards and striped stockings to complement his dresses. His latest collection concentrates the eye on the leg by means of pauties and decals.

Esky Quint Beaten On Ishpeming Floor

ISHPEMING — Coach Harold Johnson's Escanaba Eskymos got "all fouled up" in their game against the Ishpeming Hematites here Friday night and bowed by a 78-73 margin.

The victory gave Ishpeming revenge for its only previous setback this season, an 81-61 defeat at the hands of the Eskymos before the Christmas vacation. The triumph boosts Ishpeming's season mark to 9-1.

Escanaba gunned in 49 per cent of their shots from the field, hitting on 33 of 67 attempts. The Eskymos outscored Ishpeming from the field by four goals, 33 to 29, but it was a different story from the foul line.

The Eskymos were charged with 23 personals from which Ishpeming received 34 free throw attempts. The Hematites connected on 20 of them. The Eskymos had only 11 opportunities from eight Ishpeming personal fouls and made seven of them.

In addition to outscoring the Hematites, the Eskymos dominated the boards with Bob Myrvall playing a leading role. The team grabbed 48 rebounds and Myrvall had 23 of them. Ishpeming plucked off 32.

The Eskymos found themselves in a deep hole in the first quarter and were unable to pull out of it until the midway mark in the final period.

Ishpeming started like a house afire, hitting on 9 of 15 shots to take a 24-14 lead at the end of the first frame. The Hematites added 9 of 16 shots in the second quarter, during which they spread their lead to 13 points, but the Eskymos began to find the range and narrowed the gap to 47-37 at halftime.

The Eskymos continued their uphill battle to tie the score at 68-68 with five minutes to go in the game.

Ishpeming then slowed it down and forced the Eskymos to go for the ball. Fouls resulted and killed the Esky comeback. The Hematites tossed in four straight free throws to go with a pair of field goals in the stretch.

In addition to an outstanding job on the boards, Myrvall paced the Eskymos in scoring with 19 points. Paul Miller came through with 16 and Bob Irish turned in a fine performance with seven field goals.

Four of Ishpeming's five starters reached double scoring figures, headed by Alan Morrison with 28 points.

The defeat was Escanaba's second of the season against eight victories.

Escanaba won the jayvee game, 50-30.

Don Ohi Goat; Bullets Beaten

By The Associated Press

Sharp-shooting Don Ohi hit one wrong target and the Baltimore Bullets chalked up another near-miss.

Ohi, whose 41 points against St. Louis had helped Baltimore snap a 13-game National Basketball Association losing string Thursday night, poured in 30 more against Detroit Friday night — and wound up with goat horns in a 119-118 loss to the Pistons.

Jack Marin's basket with 37 seconds to play sent the Bullets ahead 119-115, but Detroit rookie Dave Bing countered with a long jump-shot. Then Ohi, bringing the ball up court, collided with Detroit's Eddie Miles and was called for charging.

The Pistons regained possession and, with seven seconds on the clock, Miles' twisting jumper from the corner dropped in. Ohi missed a desperation shot and the Bullets were finished.

In other games, Billy Cunningham provided the late spark as Philadelphia's Eastern Division leaders trimmed St. Louis 125-107 for their 40th victory in 44 starts; John Havlicek triggered Boston to a 122-102 romp over Chicago; Oscar Robertson's 41 points led Cincinnati past Los Angeles 125-115 and New York led Rick Barry to 15 points in nipping San Francisco 119-117.

Telegram To Packers Gets 150 Signatures

When the Green Bay Packers take the field against Kansas City in the Super Bowl at Los Angeles Coliseum Sunday afternoon they will be spurred on by a good luck message from their Escanaba fans.

A group of Packer backers got together last week to send a message by telegram to the Packers in their dressing room before the big game. Word of the plan circulated and when the message was given to Western Union this morning there were 150 signatures on it.

A Packer fan spokesman said today that there would be $100 left from the contribution after paying for the telegram. It will be donated to the John F. Kennedy school here.

Fans Figure Super Bowl To Decide Superiority, Coaches Feel Otherwise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Green Bay Packers and Kansas City Chiefs meet Sunday in the long-awaited, much-ballyhooed Super Bowl, a game that likely will establish to almost everyone except the coaches involved — whether the National or American football leagues is superior.

While fan interest for this meeting between the 47-year-old NFL and seven-year-old AFL centers around the superiority question, neither Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi nor Kansas City Coach Hank Stram were viewing it exactly that way.

"It's a big football game," said Lombardi, "but winning or losing won't mean the end of the world as far as the Packers are concerned — or Kansas City either."

"Superiority of one league over the other will be hard to determine in one game," Stram said. "But it will give people a better picture than they've had."

"With the public it probably will 'prove' that."

What the game ultimately will prove remains a question, but there's little doubt that the viewing public will be the largest in the history of any sporting event despite the fact there probably will be empty seats in 30,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum when the game gets underway at 4:05 P.M.

But, with both NBC and CBS televising and broadcasting the game nationally, the largest audience in sports history is virtually guaranteed.

Also guaranteed is the largest payoff in the history of pro team sports with $15,000 going to each member of the winning team and $7,000 to each loser.

The odds makers have made the Packers almost a two-touchdown favorite to grab the pot of gold, along with the enormous prestige of winning this first battle for supremacy between the longtime rival leagues who suddenly grasped hands as one big, happy family last June.

Harmony, as a matter of fact, has been the key word at the Super Bowl site and the various factions have meticulously compromised on all variations of the playing rules.

Since the footballs used in the two leagues vary slightly — the AFL ball is supposed to be easier to pass; the NFL ball easier to kick — the Chiefs will use the American League ball when they are on offense and the Packers will use the National League ball on defense.

There will be three officials from each league, sudden death will be in effect if the two teams are tied at the end of regulation time and the leagues have agreed to use the NFL one-point conversion rule instead of the AFL's two-point conversion option.

Crusaders Trip Gwinn On Surge In Third Frame

GWINN — The Holy Name Crusaders staged a stunning rally here Friday night to defeat the Gwinn Model Towners, 56-39.

Trailing by seven points, 24-17, late in the third quarter, the Crusaders came alive to tally 18 straight points against the startled home team. That put Holy Name ahead, 35-24, and the Model Towners were never able to recover.

Chris Young, a 5 foot 9 inch senior, came off the bench to spark the comeback. The reserve guard canned three long distance jumpers in the closing minute of the second quarter to go with a free throw by Terry Dufour. The sudden spurt tied the score at halftime, 24-24.

Dufour and Tom Smith kept up the bucket barrage in the third quarter as the Crusaders swept out in front. Dufour flipped in five field goals in the third period and Smith added two field goals and three free throws.

After outscoring the Model Towners, 20-6, in the third quarter, the Crusaders entered the final frame with a comfortable 44-30 cushion.

The teams battled on even terms through most of the first quarter with Holy Name always a little ahead. A pair of free throws by Smith and a singleton by Fran Veldman put the Crusaders out front at the end of the quarter, 14-11.

Coach Jerry Erickson's Model Towners made their bid early in the second period with a pressing, man-to-man defense. Field goals by Richard Decker, Terry Proberg, Andy Hines and John Macairo shoved Gwinn into its 24-17 lead before Young changed the tide with his long range bombs.

Smith paced the Crusaders with 20 points and Dufour, a 6 foot 4 inch sophomore, had the best night of his career with seven field goals and five gift shots for 19 points. Coach John Butymowicz called on his reserves through the game and received creditable performances from Al Grabowski and the Young brothers, Chris and Dan.

A major factor in the victory was Holy Name's superiority on the boards. The Crusaders pulled down 44 rebounds to Gwinn's 25. Smith handled 15 and Dufour 11 for a potent one-two punch.

The Crusaders connected on 20 of 59 shots from the field for 34 per cent and added 16 of 25 attempts from the free throw line.

A tight defense held Gwinn to 15 of 63 shots from the field for a cold 24 per cent. The Model Towners made nine of 14 from the foul line.

The victory was Holy Name's sixth against four defeats. The Crusaders return to action in a home stand against Manistique Tuesday night.

Holy Name's jayvee beat Gwinn's reserves, 46-41.

Foresters Spoil Homecoming Tilt

CARNEY — The Felch Foresters spoiled Carney's homecoming here Friday night, downing the Wolves by a 78-63 margin in Big Seven Conference competition.

The Foresters were red hot from the field, shooting 55 per cent on 28 of 51 attempts from the court. Carney had a good night with 27 of 58 for 45 per cent, but couldn't keep pace with the visitors. It was Carney's first game since the holiday tournament and the Wolves were rusty.

Felch canned nine of its first 12 shots in the first quarter and built up a 32-16 lead before Carney found the range to narrow the gap to 40-35 at halftime.

Common Athletic Practice

Nutrition Expert Warns Diets Can Be Dangerous

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Some coaches endanger the health of athletes by putting them on badly-chosen diets, says a nutritionist with the University of Arizona.

"It is an irony of sports that while coaches provide protective equipment to prevent injuries many of them often pose a threat to the athletes' health with diets aimed strictly at controlling weight," says June Gibbs.

Miss Gibbs says coaches usually do not intend to injure health but that damage is sometimes done because all factors are not considered when the diets are made up.

"There is no doubt that the coaches and athletic directors and school administrators are sincerely interested in the welfare of their athletes," she said. "Unfortunately some football players are gorged with calorie-loaded, unbalanced diets to get them up to a certain weight. Other athletes, such as wrestlers, are put on unusual diets to keep them within a certain weight range over a long period of time.

"Still other athletes are manipulated downward to a certain weight."

Miss Gibbs warns that such weight manipulation through diets is particularly dangerous with high school athletes because they still are growing.

"There should be no dietary tampering with the delicate mechanisms of bone, muscle and tissue development during the crucial period when the young person is growing from childhood through adolescence to adulthood," she said.

"Attempts to move an athlete's weight around to fit the needs of various seasonal sports can critically impair the physical fitness and future health and well-being of the young people involved."

"Not only do such weight manipulations interfere with normal growth and development but there is strong medical evidence that the constant changing of weight up and down, can be a contributing factor in the development of heart disease."

She observed that the problem often is compounded by the coach's popularity and influence with young people.

Teen-agers have traditionally tended to pay more attention to the coach than to their own parents or to health teachers and other adults, she said.

"There's a certain amount of hero image here and with that comes the feeling that what the coach says is gospel, whether it has to do with athletic instruction, or general youth counseling or training table practices," she said.

A strenuously exercising athlete needs more food than the average person of the same age and size but he needs the same variety of food values blended into the same balanced diet, she added.

An athlete is like anyone else in that he needs a daily diet which includes four glasses of milk, three or more servings of protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs and cottage cheese, five or more servings of vegetables and fruits and four or more servings of whole-grain or enriched breads, or cereals, the nutritionist said adding:

"Because he is so active, the athlete naturally will eat more of each of these foods than the average person, but he should eat only as much more as will permit him to maintain his desired weight."

Henderson Sets Red Wing Pace

TORONTO (AP)—Paul Henderson isn't quite recovered from a windpipe infection, but he's the biggest goal-producer on the Detroit Red Wings.

The Wings meet Toronto here tonight in a National Hockey League game. The Wings have won 13 games at home and tied two, but have managed only one tie and not a single victory in 18 road games.

"I'm still not healthy yet," Henderson said after scoring two goals against Chicago Thursday night. "I'm still short of wind, but it's coming."

Henderson missed 15 games and was handicapped in some others because of the stubborn infection. But he's scored 14 goals in 122 games.

The slender forward isn't the only ailing Wing. Doug Harvey, a defenseman just acquired by the Wings, has a bruised ankle and may not play against the Maple Leafs.

Floyd Smith, sent to Pittsburgh and recalled just as he suffered a knee injury, is undergoing treatment. Doctors will decide later if surgery is needed.

Bert Marshall, a defenseman who missed eight games as a result of a collapsed right lung, made the trip to Toronto but may not be able to play. Thursday he reported his chest still hurt him if he skated hard.

Terrell Crosses Right; Promises Clay Same Thing

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Ernie Terrell is firmly convinced he has the right answer to Cassius Clay's remark that Terrell is a "one-armed bandit."

The 6-foot-6 giant let loose with some solid right-hand punches, including one to the chin that floored sparmate Leo-tis Martin, in a brisk workout Friday.

"Clay will see plenty of them in Houston if he comes to fight," said the grimly-determined Terrell. They meet for the heavyweight title in Houston Feb. 6.

Clay, a bright ballyhoo artist, has dubbed Terrell the "one-armed bandit" because he claims his towering opponent fights strictly with his left hand.

It was Clay who called Sonny Liston the "Ugly Bear," Floyd Patterson "Rabbit" and George Chuvalo the "Washerwoman" before and after beating them.

"He can call me anything he wants, except that 'Uncle Tom' stuff," said Terrell.

Told there was a news story from Houston that Clay had apologized for calling him an "Uncle Tom," Terrell snapped: "His advisors must have told him to apologize. It was a stupid thing to say. But I think he meant it. I haven't heard him apologize."

"He doesn't bother me because I know I'm going to beat him. Most of his tricks are outside the ring. He can't hit you with that All Double-Shuffle. In the ring, he's not extraordinary. He's not even a complete fighter. I know how to fight him. I'm going to control the fight."

"Clay has had hand-picked opponents," said the 27-year-old Terrell. "Most of them have been too old — over the hill."

"You make even matches with him and you'll see his true color—yellow."

Spartans Eye Tie For 1st

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan State and Iowa meet in an early pivotal game Saturday night to determine which team can climb into a first place tie with Northwestern in the Big Ten basketball race.

Michigan State, the pre-season title choice, will be a slight favorite but only because the Spartans will have whatever home floor advantage there is.

Iowa, however, is riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak and the Hawkeyes' 6-2 overall record is the best among conference members.

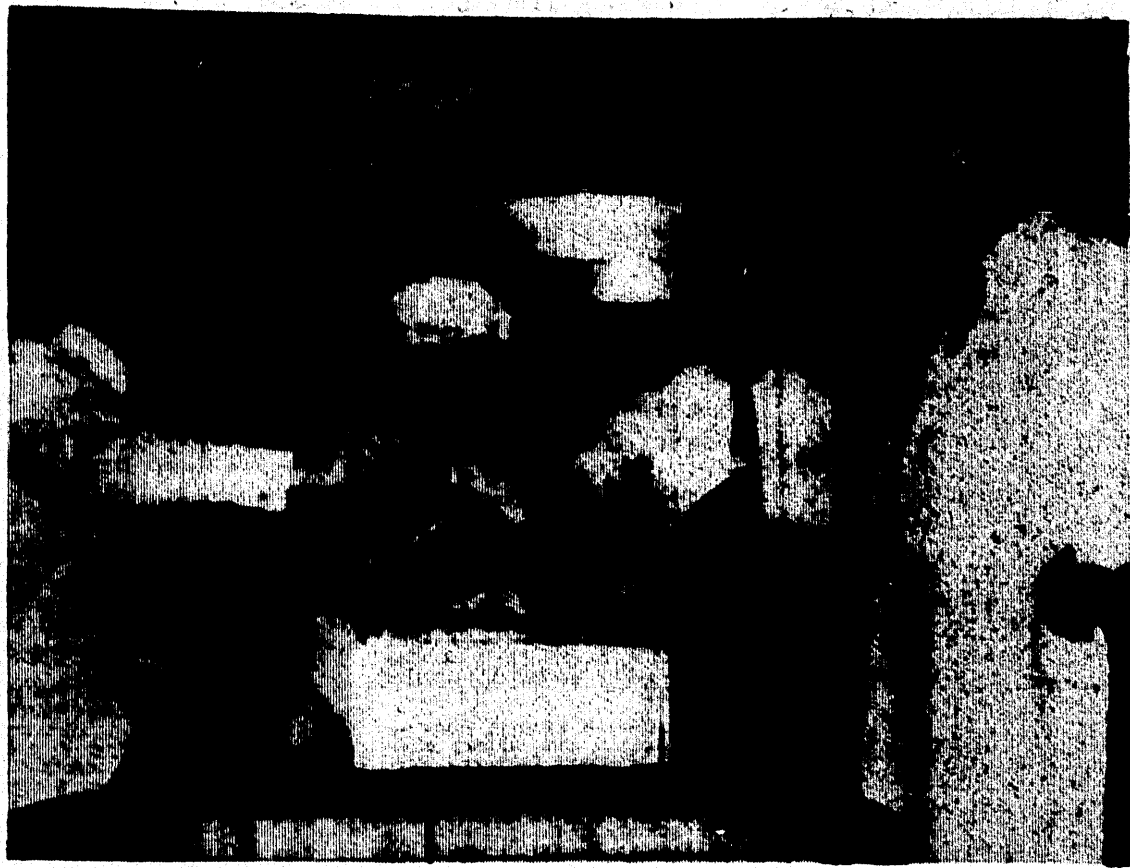

With Northwestern clutching its 2-0 record in killeens, Ohio State's surprising Buckeyes also can gain a share of the lead with a victory over Indiana which takes a 1-1 record to Columbus.

Michigan (6-3) will be at Illinois (1-2) in a regionally televised matinee and Purdue (0-1) invader Minnesota (0-3). Wisconsin (1-1) also has the day off.

Farm And Rural Loans Offered

George Ruby, County Farmers Home Administration supervisor for Delta, Schoolcraft, Menominee, and Dickinson Counties, announced today that loan money is on hand for farm operating expenses for the coming year.

The operating loan money is from the appropriation for the fiscal year which began July 1, 1966.

It is earmarked for loans to farmers for machinery, livestock, feed fertilizer and building maintenance necessary to carry on an economical and profitable agricultural program during the coming crop year.

Ruby said that during the past five years the Farmers Home Administration has had about 78 percent increase in the amount of supervised credit being provided to Michigan farmers. Practically all farmers have been able to repay their loans on schedule, make progress in their farming and improve their buildings, equipment and livestock, he said.

The Farmers Home Administration is a source of long time credit for livestock, machinery and building improvements and can make shorter term loans for feed, seed, fertilizer and other annual operating expenses.

Additional resources for low-income Michigan rural people desiring to improve their farm income or start small businesses will be provided through an amendment to Title III of the Economic Act recently signed by President Johnson.

This was pointed out this week by Nyle L. Katz, Farmers Home Administration state director for Michigan with offices at East Lansing.

"This Important Economic Opportunity Act amendment increases from $2,500 to $3,500 the maximum war-on-poverty loans that the USDA Farmers Home Administration can make to individual Michigan farmers or other rural residents," Katz said.

This amendment also authorizes additional credit to borrowers as long as their outstanding indebtedness for an economic opportunity loan does not exceed $3500.

The new economic opportunity loan provisions will more adequately cover the financing of needed land, working quarters and equipment.

Carbon Monoxide Precautions Could Save Your Life

Poisoning by carbon monoxide, the invisible killer, can be prevented.

Dr. Mary Cretnes, director of the Delta-Menominee District Health Dept., recommends the following precautions against carbon monoxide poisoning in the home:

1. Be sure the draft is adequate when using a fireplace;
2. Have gas stoves and refrigerators and furnace checked at least once a year;
3. Make sure all gas appliances are vented to the outside;
4. Don't use a gas range or oven for heating;
5. If using a hibachi grill, place it within the fireplace or an open window.

She suggested the following tips as for automobile use:

1. Have exhaust system checked at least once a year;
2. Never sit in parked car with motor running;
3. Don't run auto engine in garage, even if door is open;
4. If you back into a snowbank, check tailpipe to make sure it is not blocked.

Carbon monoxide fumes are present wherever fuel is burned. Dr. Cretnes pointed out. It kills more than 1,000 people in the U. S. and Canada each year.

Poisoning from carbon monoxide occurs from two causes, insufficient burning of fuel and inadequate ventilation. A few precautions can save a tragedy, Dr. Cretnes said.

Attend the Church of Your Choice

Today, the earth. Tomorrow, the moon. What next? Even twenty years ago we would have found it hard to accept the idea of man going out into space—landing on the moon—consuming with the stars—hurling around the earth. What will things be like twenty years from now, and what will we accept then?

Living on the threshold of the space age, it is easy to be carried away by the stranger-than-fiction events that happen every day. Because of this, we need more than ever the steady force of the Church in our lives. No matter what happens, we may be sure that the Church will continue to endure as it has through the centuries. God's House will be with us in all its majesty, as will His word.

Even the astronauts themselves have shown again and again that the Church is a deep part of their lives. Be sure to make and keep it a part of yours.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
